Quilts inspired by any aspect of civilian wartime life across the USA are welcomed.

- Format: Small quilts, measuring 80 inches around the perimeter, square or rectangular in shape.
- Traditional, contemporary and innovative techniques are encouraged.
- Entries accepted 12/1/2013 – 1/15/2014. Quilts selected by the jurors must arrive by 3/1/2014.
- Challenge guidelines:

Visit website www.wwiihomefrontquilts.com/2014-call-for-entries

The World War II Home Front Quilts Project will exhibit the best quilts entered in the challenge based on composition, concept, content and overall excellence, representing a range of styles and a diversity of home front subjects. Up to 80 quilts will be exhibited online beginning in March 2014, and at Voices in Cloth on March 22 and 23, 2014. This major San Francisco Bay Area quilt event will be held on the Richmond waterfront at the Craneway Pavilion, adjacent to the Rosie the Riveter/WWII Home Front National Historical Park Visitor Education Center.

Other exhibit venues are pending, and quilts selected by the jury will be retained for exhibition through December 2014 and returned in January 2015.

The WWII Home Front Quilts Project is a collaboration of San Francisco Bay Area quilt enthusiasts, arts organizations, museums and historical associations, the Rosie the Riveter Trust, and National Park Service staff and volunteers.

Why is Point Richmond a unique neighborhood? Why is it historically significant? Historic preservation recognizes architecture, history and people and the Point’s colorful history can be found through names like Emily Tewksbury, a widow with influence in the 1900s who also donated land for the first churches. Names of Santa Fe, Golden Gate, Washington, and Crest are easy to understand the connection to the Point, but who were Castro, Dornan, Garrard, Nicholl, Stairley? What were their contributions that warranted a name in this small community on the National Register of Historic Places? In keeping with the guidelines of preservation, at a recent meeting of the Richmond City Council the Historic Preservation Committee will honor another name from our interesting past, Captain Stenmark. As you read of the Stenmark family in this issue, envision yourself during that time period. Maintaining the history of the Point is one reason the Point is unique. If you haven't visited our small museum, check us out. Wishing the Board, Staff and Members many blessings at Thanksgiving, Happy Holidays and a New Year of Joys.

This winter issue is quite full so I decided to postpone the promised Keller Beach photos until the next issue. East Bay Parks will be installing a new interpretive panel at Keller Beach which will be quite nice. That will be part of our coverage.

I am pleased to be museum docent on the second Saturday of each month. Drop by between 11:30 am and 2:00 pm and say hello. I remind you that I am still trying to grow our photo archives, so please think of the PRHA if you have any old photos that others might enjoy. You can send me (gary@alkos.com) a high definition scan or loan them to me for a day and I will scan them. I will see that your name stays attached to the photo and it will become part of our slide show at the museum.

Wishing you all a happy and healthy holiday season.

George Martin, Point Richmond resident since 1964, is proud of his Prairie Rose Band, a band he formed when he retired ten years ago from a long newspaper career with the Richmond Independent, Oakland Tribune, SF Examiner and Chronicle. In September, the Western garbed band played at the National Heirloom Expo in Santa Rosa. This is a big gathering of exotic vegetable and animal people. They were hired for three shows after their popularity last year. Prairie Rose plays mostly senior independent and assisted living places and have a children's show that they do in libraries from Merced to Los Gatos to Point Reyes Stations. They also play farmers markets around the Bay Area.

The colorful leaves that brighten walk ways are an indicator that fall is officially here. It also brings back the fond memory of enjoying the crunching sound of the leaves when you jumped on them.

The last pancake breakfast was held in October and will resume in early 2014. Our thanks to all the faithful volunteers.. The proceeds are used for continuous upgrades and renovations.

Father continues to add to his frequent flyer miles with a trip to Venice. He travelled with his cousin who is an artist. His cousin did a sketch of Father and it was recently featured as the cover on our weekly bulletin. Word of his being in Italy reached our soprano, Elizabeth who paid him a surprise visit. He also made a trip to the Grand Tetons and is making trips to visit his family in Rhode Island to orchestrate an upcoming family wedding.

We continue to add to our Christian family as we welcome new members. It is always impressive to see the Jensen boys deliver the gifts. They look very saintly and take the honor seriously. After presenting the gifts, another family thanked us for the honor – how very impressive.

The shingles on the Santa Fe side of the rectory are close to completion with no dry rot or structural problems, and the original siding underneath the old shingles still in good shape. The wrought iron fence adds to the craftsman style of the rectory and was done by Patino Iron Works, a local company.

The ultimate goal is the roof, which eventually will be completed, but for the present, smaller upkeep projects are necessary. We again thank the Gateway Foundation for their contributions to our ongoing rehabilitation of aged edifices. In preparation of the soon-to-be here cold weather, the next expense will be replacing the heating system in the church.

The Bible Study group continues to meet in the parish hall on the third Thursday of each month at 1PM.

All are welcome to attend. We continue to collect food and clothing for the poor. Clothing may be left by the parish hall door and there is a container inside of the church for food donations.

The Fire Department has become a frequent visitor due to the alarm system. On one of the visits, the Fireman went to the top of the tower and found it full of pigeons, which is considered an official health hazard. We will have to have the records of pigeon commerce removed and a new wire mesh placed around the louvers to keep them out.

How lucky are we to live in a community which delights us with children in costume walking from their school into the business district to receive Halloween treats. It brought back fond memories of growing up in Crockett and doing likewise. Had the delight of reminiscing with a childhood friend whose son resides in Pt. Richmond – Michael Heckmann. His dad and I grew up in Crockett. There are several; other former Crockett residents who reside in the Point. There is a likeness between the two towns – narrow, hilly streets and situated on the waterfront.

When our lives come to an end, we are given the last rites. In present day practice, a priest now administers the Sacrament of the sick. This ritual was recently performed after Mass and several parishioners participated. The rite is a simple anointing with a few prayers for health and healing.

Children who participate in our sacramental preparation classes recently received First Communion. Father Kwame was the celebrant.

All Souls and All Saints days were recently celebrated. Envelopes with the names of deceased family, friends, etc., are placed on the altar and remembered in daily Masses during the month of November. The memory of their loss is always present and this is a gracious way for those we loved to be remembered.

Javier Lopez' brother, visiting from North Carolina presented a group of us with the opportunity to enjoy breakfast on the Red Oak on a beautiful summer Sunday. After breakfast, we enjoyed the museum and then made our way over to the Rosie the Riveter Museum, and were escorted by parishioner, Geri Veith, who is a docent at the museum.

Congratulations to Cynthia Quist and Michael Workman on their recent engagement. The congratulations are extended to Cynthia as she recently became grandmother to Brandon James Quist, first-born to her son, Jeffery. Great-grandparents to Brandon are Florence and Jim Wilson.

Congratulations are also in order for Anne Carroll who also became a grandmother to a baby boy.

Considering the time of the year, the turkeys have become very brazen and wander down Idaho Street as though they owned it. They seem to travel in packs and leave their droppings on the sidewalks and one has to wait as they slowly maneuver across the street.

Drivers continue to drive at no-intention to stop, freeway speeds, threatening Maxine, the crossing guard.

How delightful to see Angie Kirkpatrick attend Mass accompanied by her daughters. On another occasion, her grandson, Eric was present with his young son, Eric. In his youth, Eric was an active member of our Christian community.

There are few countries that Stan and Nancy Toledo have not visited, their latest and becoming a favorite was Turkey. Judy Spencer returned from a trip to visit her sisters in Michigan and then set off on a cruise to Quebec.

Remember in your prayers: Al Frosini, John Gerk, Bill Smith, Frank and Dixie Mello, Jack Murray and Juan Spampinato. Both Jack and Juan are in hospice care.

May you enter this holiday season with optimism and enthusiasm in the company of friends and family.

Point Methodist News - - November 2013
Jean Reynolds reporting (510-734-3942, sweetheart05@mac.com)

On September 29 we held our All Church Conference presided over by the Rev. Gaye Benson from El Sobrante United Methodist Church. We acknowledged new leaders: Barbara Haley, Ad Board Secretary; Fran Smith, Lay Member to Annual Conference; and a variety of new committee members and chairpersons. We remembered all of the ways we worked together to support the wider community in the last year, the people who have come or gone, and we recommitted to future endeavors.

At the end of October, Donna Nelson moved to North Carolina to care for her mother. Before she moved, she lingered in Point Richmond just long enough to chair an important Staff- Parish Committee meeting. We already miss her voice and wit in the choir. We hope Donna visits often when video conferencing and telecommuting prove unsatisfactory for her work projects: her employer wisely kept her on staff.

The Jean Eakle Memorial Art Auction took place October 26 at the Point San Pablo Yacht Club (and Art Gallery!) Art enthusiasts could bid on over one hundred items, or just enjoy the balmy weather on the deck, sip a drink of choice, nibble hors d'oeuvre, and listen to lively music of days gone by provided by Pastor Dan Damon on piano, Kit Eakle on fiddle, and vocals by Bethany Reynolds. It was especially fun to hear stories from bidders about why they felt compelled to bid on certain items. Deby McFadyen and Diane Frary organized the auction, and generous donors provided art, entertainment and refreshments. Richard Smith skillfully framed some pieces to enhance their salability. It was such fun! Proceeds will support our outreach in the community.

On The Calendar:

Dinner Theater: Dinner at Hotel Mac followed by the Masquers performance of the musical "A Year With Frog and Toad, " November 14, 2013. Dinner starts between 5:30 and 6:30 p.m. Curtain at 8:00. Tickets $50 include dinner, tax, tip, and a full-length production of the show. Call Jean Reynolds (510) 734-3942 or email sweetheart05@mac.com for tickets.

Kit Eakle and his fiddle graced our worship on October 20, the anniversary of his late mother, Jean's, birthday. Kit booked artists for a Jazz Concert series at the church: the most recent concert on October 25 was Hot Club of San Francisco, featuring violinist Evan Price and the music of Stuff Smith and "The Ivory Club Boys." More than forty people bought tickets before the day of the show, and many others paid at the door. The next concert is Friday, November 22, and features Mads Tolling and his Quartet. Concerts begin at 7:30; Doors open at 7:00 p.m. The sanctuary is noted for its fine acoustics.

Free Thanksgiving Feast and Celebration of Thanks: Plans are underway for the Free Thanksgiving Feast in Friendship Hall at the church, 201 Martina Street, Point Richmond, on Thanksgiving Day, November 28. A sit-down feast with all the usual trimmings will be served from noon to 2:00 p.m. Diners will be seated as they arrive. The dinner is provided by local businesses and individual donors and prepared on site by chefs Paul Garnett and Tinna Manansala. Before the feast, all are invited to share in a simple non-denominational service of thanks at 11:30 a.m. in the sanctuary. Bring your family and friends and dine with neighbors and friends from the community! If you'd like to help, contact Fran Smith: 510 685 2338 or junosmith@aol.com

The United Methodist Women hosted a home showing and discussion of the film "Cracking the Codes: The System of Racial Inequality" by Shaki Butler on September 14. A dozen people participated and all appreciated the sensitive, non-threatening way the material was presented. To introduce the film to more people and include other voices in the discussion, another screening is scheduled for Saturday, December 7, from 2:00 to 4:30 p.m., in the sanctuary. Shelli Fried from Writer Coach Connection will lead a discussion of the film after the viewing.

Claudia Russell and Bruce Kaplan planned another stunning season of Point Richmond Acoustic concerts for 2013-2014. The concert December 13 features Teresa Tudury and Claudia Nygaard; On January 10, 2014, Glen Houston and Travis Jones will perform. All concerts are at 8:00 p.m. Tickets are $18 at the door. After minimum expenses to produce the events, all proceeds go to the performers. Come early to guarantee a seat!

A Bake Sale with Crafts and yummy holiday treats is on the calendar. Meet at the Point Richmond Community Center, 139 Washington Ave., on Saturday, December 21, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Come early for homemade pie: they sell out in minutes. Other coveted items include cookies, candies, and intricately decorated cakes, beautifully packaged by Pat Dornan. Non-caloric holiday gifts will also be for sale: votive candles, crocheted purses, greeting cards, and more.

Tammara Plankers has assembled a harmony of talent, drawing from the Masquers Theater, our congregation, and the wider Bay Area community for a Christmas Pageant. The richly costumed, musically satisfying production tells the story of the first Christmas and features a children's Angel Choir and several soloists. Choose from two performance times: Sunday, December 22, 11:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. The morning Pageant lasts about an hour, but the later one will include more music and last a bit longer.

Christmas Eve Jazz service: December 24, 7:00 p.m. Start a new tradition for Christmas Eve or re-experience a favorite holiday event with the Dan Damon Quartet and various musical guests on Christmas Eve. The sanctuary fills to capacity and latecomers find a place to sit further away in Friendship Hall: arrive early for the best seats.

Christian Science Church News

A Short History

By Gordon Imrie

In their 104th official year in Richmond, students of Christian Science (no relation to Scientology) are on-the-move again. Their lease at 112-114 Washington Street expires at year's end, and much of the group's outreach has gone virtual, offered 24/7. Services may continue at the street-level location indefinitely as the group seeks new, more easily-accessible quarters. There is some thought that they may "pop up" in various locations around Point Richmond before finding a more permanent home.

Attendees (today ranging from 8 weeks to 80+ years in age) have been meeting weekly for services since 1904, and as they always have, need space for two services: Sunday (10 a.m.) presents a Bible Lesson Sermon emphasizing salvation and healing in the same manner practiced by Christ Jesus, the "science" discovered and shared by Mary Baker Eddy through her book, Science and Health, first published in 1875; with Wednesday (7 p.m.) services offering a locally-originated lesson based on Bible passages and selections from Science and Health, followed by testimonies of healing that participants volunteer as lessons they have learned through the application of church teachings as laid out by Mary Baker Eddy in the 1800s.

Eddy was described by Mark Twain as "in several ways...the most interesting woman that ever lived, and the most extraordinary." Establishing a gender-balanced church, referring to God as "Father-Mother God", and establishing a worldwide newspaper which collected seven Pulitzers – Eddy was uppity for her time, when women could only dream of voting. Her dream was that the world would embrace Christian Science and that people would come to recognize that "One infinite God, good, unifies men and nations; constitutes the brotherhood of man; ends wars; fulfills the Scripture, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself;' ...equalizes the sexes; annuls the curse on man, and leaves nothing that can sin, suffer, be punished or destroyed." Her dream was that all people would find the lost element of Christianity—that of healing.

The larger church she left to followers is headquartered in Boston, with many of its local branch churches re-configuring with emphasis on electronic means to explain and evangelize (e.g.

However, the denomination has never been known for door-to-door or other "in-yer-face" promotion, and most of its adherents are simply attracted by prayer-based healing of conditions not amenable to even modern medicine. Prayer's efficacy has been much more widely acknowledged in recent decades, as reported in a study by the American Psychological Association, with a dramatic increase among American adults over the past three decades, rising 36 percent between 1999 and 2007.

The sailboat graphic is from the cover of its bylaws published in 1914 and suggests an early Richmond self-image of marina-based culture. Whether that was accurate or not, the congregation today welcomes all neighbors and travelers, and supports gentle spiritual outreach in nearby prisons and institutions. Its address may change, but its healing emphasis remains, via the Bible, Eddy's interpretative writings, and its members' Christian service.

As you can see in this picture, the Fourth of July was a great celebration in Point Richmond. I think was taken in about 1970. Someone left this postcard in our museum so I decided it should be part of our photo archives.. If the donor will let me know I will attach his/her name to the photo. PRHA archive photo #0889

WWIC Est. 1908

News from the Womens Westside Improvement Club

by Kathleen Wimer

WOMEN'S WESTSIDE IMPROVEMENT CLUB SEEKS OTHERS

"The women delight to see you, whoever you are. You don't have to do anything special, except pay your dues and take a turn providing hospitality at the monthly lunches. And, almost any project you think to initiate – or none; no one objects, no one expects, either way; your efforts or your presence are applauded. If you do initiate a project, chances are some others may join you! But if nothing strikes you, just come for the camaraderie. So very welcoming. Who wouldn't want to join?" This assessment, from new member Gail Eierweiss, about sums up the Women's Westside Improvement Club.

There has to be some secret to our longevity. President Norma Wallace kicked off our 105th year in September. We remain the oldest continuously operating women's service club west of the Mississippi. This year Treasurer Diane Hirano put together handouts that make it easy to participate - the year's meeting schedule and a New Members' Packet. The packet has a newspaper article published June 8, 1910; forms so members can participate in SASE (pronounced "sassy") – our Sharing Activities Service Exchange; a description of our ongoing projects, for those who might want to join in; instructions for hosting when our turn rolls around, and a member roster which Diane will update in January to include any corrections and all new members. Each new member receives a lovely matching tea cup and saucer commemorating our centennial.

You can join WWIC at this year's holiday luncheon December 3 at our usual meeting place, the Fellowship Room of the Methodist Church, 201 Martina at West Richmond Avenue, at 11:30 am. Wear something in keeping with the season. Bring $15 for lunch; another $15 for dues, if you decide to join. Simple. Or, for more information or to make a reservation, call Norma Wallace, 236-6968. We look forward to getting to know you. Our treasury supports the Point Richmond community improvement projects to which we choose to make small grants each February.

ANTICIPATION OVER UNVEILING OF NEW POINT DIRECTORY MOUNTS

Past President Margaret Morkowski reports installation of the new Point directory, that will replace the one outside the fire house at the corner of Park and Richmond, awaits design and installation of a path and landscaping which she, Gordon Hirano from Shigoto Ya, and Frank Gonzalez from the City will develop. And then it's party time! When Gordon, who's building the frame for it, and the city get the directory installed, we will invite everyone to an unveiling and reception at the Community Center. Norma will preside as master of ceremonies, in the tradition established in 1908 when another president unveiled the first Indian statue which WWIC contributed back then. Altha Humphrey and Marion Kent agreed to co-chair the unveiling committee, which Diane Hirano, Susan Hesse, and Norma volunteered to join.

ON-GOING PROJECTS UNFOLD

You might like to join in our effort to clean up and enhance the walk way down from Dornan Drive into the lagoon area at Miller-Knox Park in cooperation with the staff and Scott Possin, Supervisor at Miller Knox Regional Shoreline, East Bay Regional Park District. We made good progress at our first community work day in August cleaning out undergrowth and brambles. On November 23 from 8 am to noon, we expect to install replacement plants that we're hoping will establish during the rainy season. Look for details on pointrichmond.com, or pointrichmond.nextdoor.com, or call Kathleen

Wimer at 510-230-4600 for info. It will be fun.

Marion, Linda Newton, and Norma continue to assemble the WWIC cook book from materials Margaret forwarded from the time of her presidency. Linda and Mid Dornan have undertaken to archive all past WWIC meeting minutes for posterity, in cooperation with the Point Richmond Historical Association, as our heritage dates back over a century. Both these projects welcome volunteers, too.

MEMBERS STAY IN THE KNOW

If WWIC members don't know about it, it's just not happening. I'm telling you. Here's a sampling of subjects about which members give timely updates and information:

- Altha tells us about Knit and Such. It meets at the Community Center the first Wednesday of the month from 1 – 3 pm. Altha lets us in on Arts of Point Richmond news, too.

- Margaret keeps us up to speed on what the Many Hands Project to Support Washington School and the Point Richmond Business Association do. The latter had that wonderful Picnic in the Park September 28 – a fundraiser for the Washington School PTA.

- Kathe Kiehn shares info on the latest at

The Masquers Playhouse. We understand that "A Year with Frog and Toad," which plays through December 7, is bound to be delightful.

- Mid Dornan invites everyone to the Point Richmond Historical Society to see the digital picture frame recently installed there which holds many interesting photographs from about town through the ages.

- Mid also encourages everyone to attend events that support the First United Methodist Church like the October 25 Hot Club of San Francisco tribute to Stuff Smith and The Onyx Club Boys and the October 26 5th Annual/Jean Eakle Silent Art Auction at the Point San Pablo Yacht Club.

- Susan Brooks says the all-you-can-eat pancake breakfasts at Our Lady of Mercy Roman Catholic Church, 301 W. Richmond, happen every third Sunday of the month from March through October and, for $8, are one of the best deals around.

Richmond Gets a New Street Name Stenmark Drive

Reprint from TOM BUTT E-FORUM

Source: Richmond Planning Division

The Richmond City Council reached way back into Richmond history to select a new name, Stenmark Drive, for the portion of Western Drive that extends north of I-580 and the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge along the shoreline.

Originally known as County Road 27, Western Drive was renamed at the turn of the 20th Century by real estate speculators selling waterfront lots and looking for a more evocative address. Later, Chevron cut Western Drive in two where it once passed unbroken under what is now the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge. Now in two halves, Western Drive has caused great confusion. People unfamiliar with the territory looking for the remnant of Western Drive that runs along the Point Richmond waterfront have found themselves lost on the lonely road that runs through Point Molate out to Point San Pablo and the Point San Pablo Yacht Harbor. Conversely, 18-wheelers looking for some destination on the northern segment of Western Drive have found themselves lost and jackknifed on a tight corner in Point Richmond.

Clearly, the two segments of Western Drive needed to be differentiated. The City Council's action preserved the Point Richmond portion of the street as Western Drive while renaming the northern segment Stenmark Drive.

Who was Stenmark, and why name a Richmond street after him?

Captain J.O. Stenmark of the U.S. Lighthouse Service was keeper of East Brother Light Station from 1894 to 1914, longer than any other keeper in the 140-year history of the lighthouse, which is the oldest structure in the City of Richmond. He predated most of the early Richmond pioneers with streets named after them, such as Augustin

John and Greta Stenmark

Macdonald. Who “discovered” Richmond in 1895. Stenmark’s appointment as keeper of East Brother Light Station spanned the time from the final partition of Point San Pablo in 1894 through the incorporation of the City of Richmond in 1905 until Richmond was an established industrial city. During this time, the population of what is now Richmond grew from less than 100 to more than 20,000.

Stenmark was born in 1865 and emigrated to the United States at age twenty. In 1888 he joined the U.S. Lighthouse Service. His first job was working as a crewman aboard the lighthouse tender Madroño. At that time equipment and supplies for most lighthouses were delivered by ship. The 180-foot-long Madroño had a crew of nineteen and steamed about 10,000 miles each year servicing lighthouses and buoys throughout California. The lighthouse inspector was usually on board to deliver the keepers’ pay and to inspect the station. It was while Stenmark was helping unload supplies for the Point Conception lighthouse that he saved the life of Inspector Thomas Perry.

Point Conception stands out as the most pronounced point along the California coast. Consequently, seas there can be particularly rough. Captain Stenmark and some of his fellow crew members were trying to get a small boatload of supplies to shore from the tender. Suddenly, a rough wave capsized the boat, dumping the men and supplies into the water. Perry was carried helplessly away by the heavy seas and was soon in serious trouble. The other crew members clung fearfully to the capsized boat as young Stenmark, bleeding from a cut on his head caused by a breaking oar, swam towards the inspector. Just as the inspector was about to go under, Stenmark reached him and struggled unsuccessfully to swim to shore, holding the officer’s head above water. Both men nearly drowned before finally being rescued by the tender.

Captain Stenmark was highly commended for his bravery. As a reward, on August 1, 1890, he was appointed assistant keeper at Año Nuevo Island fog signal station. Located forty-five miles south of San Francisco, the island supported a twelve-inch steam fog whistle and a small lens-lantern for a light. Although an improvement over life on the lighthouse tender, conditions on the tiny island were far from ideal. Stenmark and his wife, Breta, shared with the principal keeper a tiny cottage that had been partitioned into two living areas. The island residents could only get to and from the island by rowboat. Navigating through the surf, while trying to avoid the rocks around Año Nuevo Point, always made crossing the half-mile channel dangerous. In 1883 four men, including the keeper and assistant, drowned while trying to make the crossing.

Stenmark must have been an able assistant, for in 1892, when keeper Henry Hall was transferred, Stenmark was appointed keeper at Año Nuevo. He continued helping others, several times rescuing fishermen whose boats capsized near the island. In 1894 the Stenmarks' first daughter, Annie, was born at Año Nuevo. Three months later John Stenmark was transferred to East Brother and the young family set up housekeeping on San Francisco Bay. The island was smaller, but the house was bigger, and bay waters usually calmer. The Stenmarks quickly grew to like their new home and stayed almost twenty years.

Captain Stenmark and Breta made the most of the small piece of land. They bought soil from the mainland and grew vegetables in a tiny garden in front of the lighthouse. In pens they raised goats, pigs, rabbits, and chickens. During his first few years as keeper, Stenmark, like his predecessors, rowed the two miles to Point San Quentin to do shopping and get mail. Prior to the birth of each of his two sons he rowed all the way to San Quentin and back to fetch the doctor.

The Stenmarks had four children: Annie, Ruby, Phillip, and Folke. For several years when the children were young the government paid for a teacher to live at East Brother part of each year and tutor the children. Later, when a road was built from Point San Pablo to the town of Point Richmond, the children attended school there. By that time, mail and provisions were picked up at Point Richmond instead of Point San Quentin.

Daughter Annie lived for the first twenty years of her life on the island until she met and married Charles Morisette. Morisette worked a short distance from the lighthouse at the Standard Oil refinery. "My hubby, Charlie, used to come courting to the island," she recalled fondly in later years. "He couldn't row very good at first, but we soon taught him." When the couple got married in June, 1914, the newspaper announced "Cupid Ends Lighthouse Romance:"

A romance that had its beginning beneath the tall, gray tower of the Brothers Lighthouse, located [off] Point Orient, culminated in a happy marriage at Oakland yesterday when Charles Morisette, a foreman at the Standard Oil wharf, claimed Miss Annie E. Stenmark as his bride.

Breta Stenmark and the fog bell

Miss Stenmark is the daughter of John O. Stenmark, lighthouse keeper [off] that point, and it was while assisting her father about his duties of caring for the great white light that flashes across the treacherous waters of the upper San Pablo bay that she became acquainted with Morisette.

Despite living on an island, the Stenmarks had many friends in the surrounding bay area. They sometimes entertained as many as fifty friends and relatives at the lighthouse. On the occasion of their nineteenth wedding anniversary, the local newspaper described the gathering:

The guests were carried across to the light house from Bailey's wharf in row boats, and as the bay was calm everyone enjoyed the trip immensely.

The rooms were very prettily decorated for the occasion and the evening was spent with music and dancing. Dainty refreshments were served at the proper time, after which hearty congratulations and best wishes were extended to the host and hostess.

Stenmark retired as keeper of East Brother in July, 1914. The family moved to Richmond, where they owned and operated the Stenmark Hotel on Fifteenth Street. Stenmark died only a year later in 1915 while on board the steamer, City of Topeka, traveling up the coast from San Francisco.

East Brother Light Station benefited from numerous improvements during the two decades the Stenmarks served as keepers. The lighthouse and fog signal gained renewed importance following construction of the Standard Oil refinery in Richmond in 1901. Docks for tankers were built along the San Pablo shoreline only a few hundred yards from the station. In 1909 the California Wine Association also established Winehaven, its huge aging and bottling plant just south of Point San Pablo. The plant had a storage capacity of 12 million gallons and a 1,800-foot wharf where grapes were unloaded and barrels of wine shipped out. With these and other developments, the town of Richmond ballooned in population from 200 in 1901 to 23,000 by 1917.

Because of Captain J.O. Stenmark's illustrious life and recognition of the colorful contribution to the early history of Richmond by him and his family, Western Drive north of I-580 was renamed "Stenmark Drive." A detailed account of the Stenmark years at East Brother may be found at <http://www.ebls.org/stenmark.html>.

KNIT and SUCH

By Altha Humphrey

Are you looking for something fun to do. Would you like to be more involved in your community and meet new crafty people? Knit and Such' has been meeting for over twenty years on the first Wednesday of the month (except December). Currently we meet from 1 to 3 PM at the Point Community Center. It is open to anyone, you do not need to be a resident of Richmond. We share and support all craft ideas from knitting to crocheting, jewelry, beading, and quilting. It is free. No membership dues. Our October meeting was an exchange of supplies and we thank Susan Druding of the Crystal Palace for her generous donation of two boxes of yarn. As this was more than our needs, we donated the extra yarn to NIAD (National Institute for Adults with Disabilities) of Richmond for their Arts Program. We are often asked how our city got its name, so here is the answer!*

“Calif. city is home to park that honors those who labored on the homefront during WWII”

by Kathleen Calos

RICHMOND, Calif. When Debbie Johnston went coast to coast from Richmond to Richmond for "Secret Millionaire," the city she saw was boarded up and had bars on the windows.

"It's got danger written all over it," she said after the show, which aired Aug. 18 on ABC and revealed the charities she had chosen for donations.

When I went coast to coast between Richmonds, the California city I saw had gorgeous waterfront views and a new Rosie the Riveter national park that honors those who labored on the homefront during World War II.

My destination was Point Richmond, the place that ties together the East and West coast cities by virtue of the man who named it.

Edmund Randolph, a native of Virginia's Richmond, represented the San Francisco area at the first meeting of the state legislature in 1849. Randolph gets credit for deciding that the West Coast needed a Richmond, too, when a federal surveying party was mapping the San Francisco Bay. Point Richmond became a name on the 1854 geodetic coast map used in selecting the endpoint of the San Joaquin Valley Railroad. By 1899, the name appeared on railway maps.

Now Point Richmond is a National Historic District. Quaint shops, friendly people and 34 miles of the San Francisco Bay Trail make it a nice spot to spend an afternoon.

San Francisco people cautioned us about getting lost in Richmond, though, because the Richmond that Johnston visited on the eastern side of Interstate 580 remains a high-crime area. The only time we actually did get lost, we got stuck in a dead-end alley overlooking the waterfront, where a good-natured homeowner helped us turn around.

"Happens all the time," he said.

A street guide map stands on a prominent corner in Point Richmond, Calif

Before World War II, Richmond had fewer than 23,000 people. During the war, the population increased to more than 120,000.

"Richmond being a hub as a shipbuilding center really demonstrated some of the dramatic changes that occurred," said Tom Leatherman, park superintendent.

"It was an amazing transformation," he said. "Not only did you have this increase in industry, but you had to support that in the infrastructure of the city, so you had changes in war worker housing. Henry Kaiser recognized he had to have employees who were able to come to work and be healthy and come back to work the next day so he started the first prepaid health care in association with that. Kaiser Permanente is the exact same Kaiser." Kaiser also developed 24-hour child care centers to enable women with children to work.

Minorities joined the workforce in different roles than before, which meant that racial issues also had to be resolved. Kaiser, who built the operation, recruited people from the South to work in his shipyard.

"What he saw was that he had a task at hand, and that task was to build ships - 747 of them during the war - in a very short period of time, three years. He realized that the only way he could do that was to have workers who could do it,"

Leatherman said.

"He tapped into the untapped resource of women and minorities who hadn't been in those industries before, because there weren't other sources of workers. He recognized that all of these people are capable of doing this job."

The Rosie the Riveter national park is unusual in its organization because the National Park Service doesn't actually own the elements of the park, it just interprets them. Permanent exhibits won't be installed in the visitor center until next year.

"You must tell your children," says the final quote above the water, "putting modesty aside, that without us, without women, there would have been no spring in 1945."

George Coles Takes a Dive Point Richmond Responds

By George Coles

Last week my ophthalmologist, Dr. Pae, had me in for a bit of cataract surgery on my right eye, not uncommon for my age which is 91. This limits my driving to being chauffeured about by my favorite person, Pat Pearson.. So, on Tuesday October 15 around noon Pat dropped me off at West Richmond and Garrard, the corner by the Plunge so I could cross the street and go to the Mechanics Bank. She was to go home unload the groceries and return to pick me up.

Reveling in the brightness of my new condition, in the noonday sun, I skipped across the street. I reached in my shirt pocket where my ATM card was lurking along with numerous other cards and money. Klutz that I am, I tripped on the curb and fell completely flat on my face, glasses shattered, cards scattered along with my money with blood flowing from a gouge by my left eye.

On my knees, blood inundating my cards and money before me on the concrete, I cursed my clumsiness. Just then I felt hands helping me. It was a great couple helping me up and offering me a ride home. They had just made the right turn off Garrard onto West Richmond by the bank and saw me fall. I looked at their beautiful car and I thought of the damage my bleeding would do to the interior so I thanked them and refused their offer. They stayed by me anyway.

We saw another vehicle stop and park in the middle of the street; it was Richmond Fire Department Battalion Chief Merlin Turner to the rescue. I knew him from meetings on the Red Oak Victory. He suggested the hospital, but I wanted no more than aid; so he called for it. And did we get aid !!!! A huge fire engine with at least five medically trained people arrived.

Deborah Wilkinson, a woman I had just met the Sunday before at the pancake breakfast on the Red Oak Victory, came running over to provide more aid. She sat with me on a park bench while we waited for Pat to arrive. About this time Pat returned; she wondered why Deborah was helping me walk to the car. I just climbed into the car and we drove off.

This whole incident took less than ten minutes, but it says something about Point Richmond. When you need help it comes in a hurry. We take care of each other. Thanks to everyone for the rescue.

There was no developed beach park or picnic area. "The problem with a beach area anywhere on the base was the continual existence of an oil slick on top of the water all along the shore. No one would have thought of getting into the water during the war. It was too icky and the shore smelled bad."

Circa 1968 to 1975

(Dwight Bohm, Navy Base Director 1976-1978, Willie Haywood, retired Richmond Public Works Director)

The City of Richmond leased the park property from the Navy at $1/year and took over maintenance at some point during this period.

A security fence was installed along Western Drive, but public access to the park was maintained so that citizens of Richmond could enter and depart the park without passing through the Navy security gate.

City of Richmond closed the beach due to severe budgetary constraints.

2003

City of Richmond takes title to most of the Naval Fuel Depot, including the beach park, with a payment of $1 to the Navy.

Richmond City Council approves plan for phased reopening of beach park with expectation of opening in summer, 2013 (and it did).

The People of Richmond have Another New Park!

After being fenced off for more than a decade, Point Molate Beach Park opened to the public in October. The park has been cleaned up beautifully, it has brand new picnic tables and BBQ pits. The trees are groomed and the beach is clean and pristine. Thank you City of Richmond Public Works Department for a job well done! The city council allocated a portion of the settlement received from the 2007 Cosco Busan oil spill to fund the park improvements. Council members approved the park's reopening earlier this year.

Art Edwards grew up at Point Molate during WWII, here are some of his memories of the base.

"I always enjoy talking about Point Molate, the base I grew up on during the war. My dad was superintendent of the base from 1943 to 1953. I do not remember a beach park anywhere on the base at that time. If there was one, it would have been just to the left after you drive through the main (south) gate. The families did picnic on the hillside on the right side of the road after coming through the gate. There was absolutely no beach or picnic area beyond the top of the hill heading toward the north gate. The problem with a beach area anywhere on the base was the continual existence of an oil slick on top of the water all along the shore. No one would have thought of getting into the water during the war. It was too icky and the shore smelled bad. No one was concerned about environmental damage in those days."
